Peace negotiations could go on for years: Perez de Cuellar Iraq-Iran direct talks to open today GENEVA, Aug 24, (Agencies): Iranian and Iraqi negotiators today prepared to begin UN-sponsored peace that claimed an estimated 1.5 million dead and wounded. As their delegations flew to Geneva for the opening meeting, set for tomorrow afternoon, both sides continued to trade charges of ceasefire violations but UN officials said the situation on the war front seemed hold in the eight-year-old war

The opening joint meeting; the first ever face-to-face talks since the war began in Sept 1980, was scheduled for tomorrow afternoon in the council chamber of the Palais des Nations, the sprawling complex housing the UN offices in Geneva.

UN Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who chairs the talks, planned to meet separately with the two chief negotiators in the morning.

Perez de Cuellar was quoted today as saving that talks due to begin Thursday on ending the Gulf war could go on for years. "It all depends on the political will of the parties," the UN chief said in an interview with the French newspaper Le Monde.

Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz, the head of Iraq's delegation, repeated in a brief arrival statement his country's doubts of the sincerity of Iran's acceptance of the UN Security Council's ceasefire Resolution 598.

"The intention of Iraq is clear," he said, referring to a goal of a "comprehensive, lasting and stable settlement." He added, "what is unclear is the meaning and concept of Iran's accep-

Perez de Cuellar, who is to chair the talks, meanwhile, met the president of the all-Swiss International Committee of the Red Cross, Cornelio Sommaruga, to discuss the repatriation of the more than 80,000 prisoners of war.

The transfer of prisoners, including at least 50,000 held by Iran, is likely to be the knottiest issue in the early phase of the negotiations which are certain to last many months.

Resolution 598 urges their repatriation "without delay after the cessation of active hos-tilities." But the ICRC says it will accept a mandate to organise the repatriation only if it can make sure in individual interviews with each prisoner that he is willing to return to his country.

Spokesman Giuliani said the agenda would cover implemen-tation of Resolution 598. That document, adopted one year ago, demanded an immediate ceasefire and calls for early troop withdrawal to international boundaries and repatriation of prisoners of war.

It also called on both sides to co-operate with the secretarygeneral in reaching "a comprenensive, just and honourable settlement" of all outstanding

The long-term agenda for the talks also is expected to cover a border dispute over the Shatt Al Arab waterway, reparations and establishment of a commission to determine which side started

Benazir given armed guards after threats

KARACHI, Aug 24, (Reuter): Pakistani police posted armed guards at the house of opposition leader Benazir Bhutto today in what they said was a security precaution after the suspected assassination of President

Mohammad Zia-ul-Haq.
The move coincided with increased security across the country as minority Shifte Muslims celebrated an annual religious festival to mourn the martyrdom of Imam Hussein.

Up to 5,000 troops with automatic weapons patrolled Karachi, Pakistan's biggest city, as bare-chested Shiite men marked the Ashura festival by flailing themselves with chains in an act of contrition.

There were no immediate reports of trouble.

Precaution

Police said three armed plainclothesmen were posted outside Benazir's Karachi home as a precaution but added they knew of no specific security threat to the 35-year-old leader.

"We do not think there is any necessity for any security guards. We have not asked for them," said N.D. Khan, deputy secretary-general of Benazir's

Pakistan's Party (PPP).
Five members of the intelligence services, which have kept open watch on Benazir's house for several years, were at their usual posts outside its high walls topped with barbed wire.

Benazir said she was told of threats against her life yesterday, when the government posted guards at her home.

"They informed me that they had received some threats so they wanted to post some guards, she said in an interview.

Benazir, who is pregnant, said she was not frightened. "My father was always receiving death threats," she said.

At a press conference Benazir traded her tough rhetoric of old for a new softness with the declared aim of giving the Army no reason to seize power.

Speaking to foreign reporters, she said the Army had pulled back from intervention after Zia's death and she urged politicians to ensure it had no pretext to change its mind.

"I would say that had the Army ... wanted to intervene there was no better time to do it than at General Zia's death," she said. "The fact that they have not

Iraq forces Iranian troops to retreat

BAGHDAD, Aug 24, (Agencies): In an apparent truce violation, Iraq said its Army forced Iranian troops to retreat to positions held before a ceasefire took effect four days ago and accused UN peacekeepers of failing to prevent the Iranian advance.

The report yesterday came ours after Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati informed the United Nations that Iraq intended to launch an offensive against Iran and had massed troops on the central front, a violation of the UN-brokered truce agreement. It was not immediately known whether the troop movements reported by Iran and the confrontation reported by Iraq referred to the same situation.

There was no immediate comment from the United Nations on either claim. In a cable to UN Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, Velayati said Iraqi forces were massed along the tense central front northwest of Ahvaz. The region has remained tense since Iraq charged an Iranian sniper killed an Iraqi private in the sector after the truce took effect on Saturday. Iran has denied the accusation.

Later in the day, an Iraqi Foreign Ministry spokesman in Baghdad said Iranian troops had advanced after the ceasefire was in place and had taken up two positions across from the strong Iraqi Fourth Army Corps in the Ain Kiza area of the central war

The Iraqi News Agency quoted the spokesman as saying Iraqi soldiers were "forced to take the necessary measures to restore the previous situation" because the UN team monitoring the ceasefire failed to do so.

'The United Nations team exerted in vain continuous efforts during the last two days to make the Iranians return to their previous positions" after Iraq protested the Iranian troop ! movements, he was quoted as

The spokesman described the situation on the front as "stable" after the Iraqi "measures," and warned the Iraqi Army would not hesitate to use force to push back Iranian forces stepping outside their pre-truce positions.

The Iraqi Army is massing for an all-out offensive against Kurdish rebels, in northeast Iraq in a bid to crush guerrillas fighting for an independent homeland, Kurdish officials said today.

"The Iraqis are planning large-scale operations in all the Kurdish liberated zones along the entire 340-kilometre (220mile) border with Turkey," a spokesman for the Iranianbacked Kurdish Democratic Party, or KDP, said.

Tanker

Meanwhile, the first Iraqi oil tanker to transit the Gulf since the war with Iran broke out eight years ago left the waterway today, Oil Minister Issam Abdul Rahim Al Chaiaby said.

Chalaby said in a telegram to President Saddam Hussein that the Ain Zala, carrying 18,000 tonnes of crude to South Yemen's Aden refinery, had passed through the Strait of Hormuz to the open seas.

Meanwhile, two cargo ships carrying 33,000 tons of wheat and several thousand tons of sugar berthed at Iran's Bandar lmam Khomeini port on Mon-day for the first time since the Gulf ceasefire.

US experts discount missile theory

'Explosion on board' caused plane crash

ISLAMABAD, Aug 24, (UPI): US experts investigating the plane crash that killed President Mohammad Zia-ul-Hag are convinced it was caused by sabotage, a news report said today.

tani source as saving that a senior American expert, identified as US Army Brig. Gen. Cloyd Pfister, returned to Islamabad from the crash site on Monday and yesterday discussed the probe with Pakistani investigators.

"The Americans were ... convinced that the crash was an act of sabotage and not an accident," the source told the newspaper

He said the US experts were still not positive of the method employed to down the aircraft, but added they were "almost convinced" that an on-board explosion sent it hurtling into the ground near the eastern city of Bahawalpur last Wednesday.

A theory that the aircraft was hit by a missile "does not hold much ground" among the US investigators, the source was quoted as saying. No comment was immediately available from the US embassy on the report.

Killed with Zia in the disaster were US Ambassador Arnold Raphel, US Brig. Gen. Herbert

Wassom and 27 others, including some of Pakistan's top military

The investigation of the crash is being overseen by the Pakistan Air Force, according to officials, but two teams of American experts were called in to Bab-awalpur to provide assistance. One team is involved in probing the cause of the accident and the second comprises forensic pathologists. American officials have said. They have also said the experts' findings would not be completed for about two weeks.

Implied

Senior Pakistani officials. including Zia's constitutional successor as President, former Senate Chairman Ghulam Ishaq Khan, have proclaimed sabotage

as the cause of the plane crash. They have implied it was carried out by operatives of Khad, the Soviet-trained Afghan secret police. Under Zia, Pakistan had been acting as a conduit for American arms supplies to Muslim rebels fighting to topple the Soviet-installed Kabul government. A report in Dawn newspaper said local journalists were allowed on Monday to visit the crash site for the first time and found that the bulk of the wreckage was concentrated within a half acre (20 ares) of land, with other parts scattered within a two-acre (80 ares) area. The crash created a five-footdeep (1.5-m-deep) crater and set one tree aflame, the newspaper

More Soviet republics demanding autonomy

TALLINN, Soviet Union, Aug 24, (Reuter): Thousands of Estonians demonstrated for more autonomy from Moscow during a day of rallies in all three Baltic Republics to mark a 1939 pact leading to their incorporation into the Soviet Union.

Tass news agency said 100,000 people also turned out in the Lithuanian capital of Vilnius and several thousand in the Latvian capital of Riga yesterday, the 49th anniversary of the signing of the Nazi-Soviet non-aggression

Secret clauses of the pact, signed by the Nazi and Soviet foreign ministers on August 23, 1939. assigned Estonia. Latvia and Lithuania to the Soviet sphere of influence.

In Tallinn, thousands of people at two rallies heard charges that the Soviet Union had falsified the history of the pact and the resulting annexation of the Baltic countries after Stalin's Red Army entered them in 1940.

Husband packs bomb in wife's luggage

MOSCOW, Aug 24, (Reuter): A Soviet husband who packed a bomb into his wife's luggage has disappeared from his Kiev residence after learning that the device failed to explode and her plane landed safely, Pravda said today.

The newspaper said the bomb, planted by a former Army colonel identified only as G., had "major destructive force."

It said he had timed the bomb to explode 35 minutes before the Tupolev-154 passenger jet taking his wife from Kiev to the Volga Rivercity of Kuibyshev last Thursday was due to

The wife's suspicions were aroused when she found on arrival that a box she had packed with food contained bits of metal instead. Mrs G. took the box to the police.

"One glance by an experienced eye sufficed to determine what was inside: an explosive device," Pravda said.

It said the alibis of luggage han-dlers stood up and police then earched the Kiev home of Mi and Mrs G., where they found items similar to those used to make the bomb in the garage.

The United States has maintained for years that a Soviet

According to an information sheet distributed by the US mission, US officials recently told the Soviets that unless the radar is dismantled, no agreement is possible at negotiations on reducing strategic, or intercontinental nuclear forces.

It was apparently the first time the US side linked the treaty and negotiations.

The START talks began in Geneva in March 1985. Both sides agree in principle that strategic forces should be reduced by 50 per cent.

The Soviets have demanded for years that as a precondition for a START agreement, the United States must limit its Strategic Defence Initiative, a research plan aimed at creating a space-based missile defence.

The Soviets maintain that some research on SDI, of "Star violates the ABM Wars," Treaty.

The United States has consis tently refused the demand and criticised the Soviet position.

Today, the ABM Treaty review opened in a low-key atmosphere following earlier tough statements for the United States that suggested a possible showdown over the Kras-noyarsk radar.

UN chief inaugurates Cyprus peace talks

GENEVA, Aug. 24, (UPI): Leaders of the Greek and Turkish communities on divided Cyprus met with UN Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar today to lay the groundwork for direct unity talks.

Cyprus President George Vassiliou and Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash lunched with Perez de Cuellar in the first encounter in three years between heads of the two feuding ethnic communities.

Backed by occupation troops sent in by Turkey, minority Turkish Cypriots declared a separate state in 1983 with Denktash as President but it is considered illegal by the UN and recognised only by Ankara.

Perez de Cuellar called on the two sides to begin direct talks in September on reuniting the 673,000-population island — at 140 by 60 miles a little smaller than the US state of Connecticut.

The lunch at the Palais des Nations, the UN's European headquarters, was initiated by the Secretary General and restricted to five persons — himself, the two leaders, UN Under-Secretary General Marrack Goulding, and UN Cyprus special representative Oscar Camilion.

Vassiliou told reporters the projected direct inter-communal talks would be held in the Cyprus capital of Nicosia which is also divided like the island iself.

"Hopefully the talks will last said.

Huge blast wipes out Afghan arms depot

WASHINGTON, Aug 24, (UPI): Soviet and American officials confirm that a huge blast occurred at an ammunition and fuel storage depot in northern Afghanistan, but disagree on the number of casualties.

Polls dispute may spark civil war in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Aug 24, (AP) Sharp differences between allies and foes of Syria Lebanon's main power broker — over the election of a new President threaten to rekindle this country's bloody 13-year war between Muslims and Christians.

Food for kindergartens won't be stopped

DESPITE previous news to the contrary, it has now been denied that the Ministry of Education has decided to stop providing children at kindergartens with food at the beginning of the new academic year.

A source at the minsitry stated that there was no study about not providing food, nor is the ministry even considering such a move, since it fully appreciates the importance of the food service.

Commenting on a story published in a local daily about food poisoning reported in some schools last year, the source said that the ministry revealed the details of the incident in all local newspapers. The ministry was not responsible for the poisoning and proved that it was caused by an infected food company worker, the source said. The incident was a result of negligence in inspection of places that produce food, which is beyond the duties of the ministry, he said.

The ministry is ready to cooperate with the Ministry of Public Health and the Municipality in more strictly controlling school canteens, he said.

Palestinian uprising spills into Israel

By Jonathan Karp

TEL AVIV. (Reuter): When Arabs hurled three fire bombs from the roof of a Tel Aviv shopping mall in June, many Israelis feared the Pulestinian uprising in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip had spilled into

A grenade blast on Saturday that wounded 25 people on a busy street in nearby Haifa reinforced the feeling many people have that the eight-month-old intifada (uprising) is also being fought inside Israel.

Politicians and security officials have sought to allay the fears.

"Naturally, there are cases with clear nationalist motives, but I would say these incidents are sporadic, occurring here and there," Tel Aviv police chief Yigael Marcus told Reuters. Tel Aviv, the commercial and entertainment capital of Israel and seat of its largest metropolitan area, is in many ways the heart of the modern Jewish state. It was founded on Mediterranean sand dunes almost 80 years ago as the first all-Jewish city in modern times.

No one was injured by the fire bombs in Tel Aviv, which were tossed into a side street. Crimes

Since the incident, however, Tel Aviv police have recorded more than 40 politically motivated crimes, a marked increase over any two-month period in recent memory, a sen-

Arab-Jewish violence in the area has escalated in the past two weeks with the deaths of three Palestinians from arson, the beatings of five Arabs, the attempted drowning of a Jewish boy, and a spate of arsons and incidents of rock - and bottle-throwing.

In addition, so many Nazi swastikas and pro-Palestine Liberation Organisation slogans have been daubed on Tel Aviv buildings that the municipality has set up a unit solely devoted to cleaning them off.

team," a city official told Reuters, only partly in jest. His unit answered more than 50 calls in its first week of operation.

Marcus maintains the incidents are no cause for alarm. With 27,000 Israeli Arabs in the southern Jaffna area and an estimated "tens of thousands" of West Bank and Gaza Palestinian workers, the Tel Aviv area has long been a site of Arab-Jewish violence, stemming mostly from ordinary crime.

volatile atmosphere created by the intifada has imbued almost every episode of Arab-Jewish strife with political significance.

Moreover, police say, both sides are taking advantage of the tensions to stroke their respective nationalist fires, leading to exaggerated stories of, among others, beatings and attempted

"It's often like trying to find out whether the dog bit the man or the man bit the dog," Marcus

Another senior officer remarked: "We have to be careful because there are so many interests at stake."

In one case, a Tel Aviv woman claimed nationalist Arabs tried to kidnap her six-year-old son. Her vivid description of the incident sparked anger among Jews. But police quickly dismissed her account after failing to find any witnesses to an event that supposedly occurred in broad daylight in a busy shopping district. However, the next day two Jewish men in the same lowermiddle-class neighbourhood, in an apparent act of reprisal, were accused of attacking two Arab workers along with the workers' Jewish boss who tried to defend

Reprisal

Reprisals worry Marcus. He denies the intifada has reached Tel Aviv but asserts his job is to prevent it from snowballing.

The incidents in the Tel Aviv area have not commanded much media attention, compared to clashes in the occupied territories, where nearly all of the unrest's more than 262 Arab and four Jewish victims have been

Violence begets more violence on both sides. Police arrested four Jews from the nearby suburb of Or Yehuda on suspicion of locking three Gaza Strip Arab labourers in a shed and burning them to death.

Army officials said that news of the Or Yehuda incident sparked protests among the 650.000 Palestinians of the Gaza Strip, quashed by a round-theclock Army curfew in mid-August.

Zia's death

Afghan government benefits indirectly

By Adam Kelliher

KABUL, (UPI): The Afghan government is likely to benefit indirectly from the death of Pakistani President Mohammad Zia-ul-Hag and the Soviet Union could find it easier to complete its troop withdrawal from Afghan-

Although diplomats said Thursday they did not expect any major shift in Pakistan's support for Afghan rebels fighting the communist government follow-ing Zia's death Wednesday in a plane crash, they noted the guerrillas have lost their most unwavering supporter in Zia. "Zia is going to be a hard man to replace in terms of devotion to the mujahedeen (guerrilla) cause." a Western diplomat said.

Other analysts added that the country is bound to be diverted from this support as different factions vie for power. "To some extent, the Afghan government will be given breathing space." a senior Asian diplomat said.

Resistance

The resistance also is likely to be hampered, at least temporarily, by the death of Gen Akhtar Abdur Rahman, the Pakistani chief of state who was aboard Zia's aircraft. Rahman co-ordinated assistance to the rebels and had close personal rapport with all the guerrilla leaders.

With Pakistan investigating the possibility of sabotage in the crash. Afghanistan's government and its chief sponsor, the Soviet Union, are bound to come

Former US Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said the Soviets will get "credit" in the region for Zia's death and "are significant beneficiaries." He added, "it reduces Pakistan's capacity to influence the outcome of the Afghan civil war that will inevitably occur in Afghanistan after Soviet troops withdraw."

He also said Zia's death makes it "easier" for the Soviets to continue their withdrawal. "This makes the supply to resistance fighters more difficult ... because there will be no really authoritative government in Pakistan for many months, not until the elections." scheduled for November.

President Najibullah of Afghanistan has offered his condolences and expressed hopes for good future relations with Pakistan.

However, a Soviet source, who declined to be identified, said several high-ranking Afghan officials had expressed "a satisfied reaction" to Zia's death, although he dismissed the possibility of involvement by Moscow or Kabul.

Zia had so many enemies, not only Afghanistan and the Soviet Union," he said'

India has fought three wars with Pakistan and relations recently have been tense. Zia also had numerous internal opponents opposed to his harsh Islamic

Attack

A senior US official pointed obliquely toward possible Soviet involvement, saying in Washington. "the Soviets have been attacking and warning Zia for the past week, so they have some explaining to do."

As the Soviet troop withdrawal from Afghanistan has picked up steam, there have been increasing charges by Moscow and Kabul that Islamabad was violating the Geneva accord which established the timetable for the pullout of 115,000 Soviet soldiers, scheduled to be completed by Feb 15.

Let us be honest

SIR: While appreciating the patriotism of Jacob Philip as expressed in his letter to the Arab Times (Aug 11-12), let us look to the other side of things. Larry Banks of the British Council is a very responsible diplomat and his observation could not be unfounded. Before over-reacting to such remarks, let us look at ourselves. Banks' remarks should serve as an eye opener to all of us. Haven't we heard that "sins of an individual blur the image of everyone." Here in Kuwait we have more than one such individual among us who have perfected the art of illegally recruiting peopleskilfully evad-ing the law of both the land of recruitment and the land of employment.

About the Indian English Banks would be astonished to know how brilliantly we could use the "comedy" of English pronunciation.

Recently an unskilled labourer was recruited on a salary of KD 90 per month. When the poor labourer found that his pay packet contained only KD 19, his recruiter told him that English is spoken dif-ferently in Kuwait and "ninety" should be pronounced with two long "ees" and one "n" at the end Anotherepisode: a job seeker was promised a "work visa" on a higher salary and on arrival to his dreamland the poor man found himself employed as a domestic servant.

When he wanted to know how did it happen, he was told by the recruiter that by "work visa" he actually meant "Varkey visa," because the visa was arranged by a man named Varkey. So we have learnt the English language and we know scientifically its co-efficient of elasticity.

Instead of getting upset at such remarks pointed at us, let us look to reforming ourselves by isolating and exposing such anti-social elements. Banks would be doing a fur-

SIR: Referring to Chief Minister of Kerala E.K. Nayanar's appeal for funds for Perumon train disaster victims, I feel pity for those Malayalees who made a big issue out of a humanitarian call for help.

Nayanar's efforts to raise some funds for the needy is praiseworthy and the sudden withdrawal of the appeal due to pressure from some people is

When Nayanar requested people to remit funds, directly to the Finance Ministry in Kerala, the only people who got upset were the ones who were in the past deeply involved in "collection of funds" and other "social welfare activities."

It was quite natural that these "professional collectors" lost a very good opportunity to make a fast buck, because of the call for direct remittance. No intellectual in Kuwait thinks that Nayanar violated any regulations on finance. Nayanar is noble man who suffered for India's independence, and sacrificed everything including land and house.

Number of stray cats growing

SIR: I like to draw your attention to the ever growing number of stray cats in Kuwait.

I vividly remember, about 40 years ago when a large number of donkeys and dogs wandered about in the streets, but the government quickly took care of the problem.

For many years there were no stray animals, but now the problem seems to recur in the form of cats. Many cats cannot even get a drink of water during the hot season. Young boys in groups with dogs chase the cats and kill them. Some hit the cats with stones and bottles, and kittens are dumped in garbage bins and pits.

I love cats and I have found out that many cals and kittens have infectious diseases and become blind. This is harmful to children.

On my part, I am taking sufficient care of all the cats around my apartment, but the plight of others is creating con-cern. I hope this will prompt the government once again to launch a programme for the eradication of stray animals. Social organisations could also lend a helping hand.

Japan's Army struggles to get the right stuff

By Nao Nakanishi

TOKYO, (Reuter): Japan's military can afford increasingly complex technology but finds it has to scrape the barrel to get new

"It has always been difficult to get enough people but the situation is getting worse," said Take-shi Ozawa, a staff department director at the Defence Agency.

The agency is trying to improve some of the more spartan conditions at its base.

But, said Ozawa in an interview: "Young people ... are less prepared to live in a military base with thousands of other soldiers, where privacy is limited and they have to put up with less

Japanese military experts said the Japan Self Defence Forces (JSDF) have always had a negative image due to their ambiguous position in the country's recent history.

At the end of World War II, a devastated and war-weary Japan agreed it would renounce war and never rebuild its own Army. The JSDF was created in 1954 as a volunteer Army for home

GENEVA, (AP): Settlement talks between Iran and Iraq starting today are only one way in which Geneva this week will bolster its "city of peace" tradition reaching back more than a cen-

Yesterday Greek and Turkish factions from Cyprus opened two days of meetings in a new attempt to resolve the divided island's political future.

Both sets of talks are brokered by the United Nations, which has its European base at the former League of Nations building. Switzerland, in keeping with its strict neutrality, is not a UN member.

The heavy UN focus is also likely to overshadow a third major meeting on the city's neutral ground: a US-Soviet review of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, whose outcome could affect superpower arms reduction talks

The "Geneva spirit" saw a renaissance this year with the completion of a US-Soviet treaty scraping intermediate-range missiles - the first true disarmament treaty in 16 years - and the signing of a UN-backed accord setting a Soviet troop pullout from Afghanistan.

Those agreements took years to complete, a fate that may "Nobody really wants to work for the Self Defence Forces unless they have to," said Tetsuo Maeda, author of several books on Japan's detence affairs.

Pay is competitive. A young recruit can expect about 110,000 yen ($850) a month plus bed and board, comparable to the total package for a young graduate starting in a major company.

Money, however, is not bringing in the right people, say some independent experts. Maeda said many youths joined because it was the only job they could get. They could then use their Army training in different skills as a step to a job in big Japanese companies, after serving four to six

The agency pays over 4,100 recruiting officers around Japan to employ about 20,000 young soldiers each year to replace those who terminate their service. That is getting near to 10 per cent of the total force, currently 260,000.

Desperate to make the number match, the recruiting officers not only approach high school graduates but check all kinds of unemployment lists, said a for-mer defence agency official, who declined to be named.

Ozawa disagreed that standards were falling. "The quality of the people working for the Self Defence Force is definitely and 1960s," he said.

The independent experts made no comparisons but were pessimistic. "It is definitely not the best of each generation who go to the Self Defence Forces," said Haruo Fuji, another author of books on military matters. Maeda said the JSDF dilemma was that recruitment standards were falling at the same time as military technology grew in complexity and the United States was putting more pressure on Japan to play a larger role in its own defence. In the past decade defence spending has doubled. The debate over the quality of the JSDF was raised in public last month when only one sailor from the crew jumped into the water to rescue people after a Navy submarine collided with a pleasure

US no longer worried about Soviet military threat

By Charlotte Salkowski

WASHINGTON: Americans are no longer as worried about the Soviet military threat as they once were. The "new detente" with Moscow has conspicuously lowered public concern.

But as Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis and his run-ning mate Lloyd Bentsen campaign for the White House, they will seek to capitalize on a new nuance in the American mood. Polls point to a growing view that American security is as much a question of economics as military strength and that the danger to the United States of losing out economically to Japan and other countries is greater ultimately than the Soviet threat.

Hence, Governor Dukakis' unrelenting stress on jobs and Senator Bentsen's experience in the field of trade and finance could be important factors in the election, say political observers."

"Foreign policy is being redefined in a way that brings it into the domestic arena as much as I can remember," says Kevin Phillips, a conservative Republican and publisher of the American Political Report, "So there's an overlapping of the new foreign policy with basic domestic issues.'

Political analysts agree that foreign policy is not pivotal in an election unless there is a war or threat of war, or unless the candidates take extreme, polarizing positions on issues. Neither is the case in 1988. But voters are voicing concern about trade, fairness, and a perceived economic threat from abroad. Asked in a recent Gallup poll about their potential concerns for the future, 27 per cent of the respondents said they were "very concerned" about a military conflict. But the figures rose to 40 per cent when people were queried about concern over the growth of foreign investment in the US, 50 per cent on loss of jobs, and 40 per cent on the decline in the quality of American products.

Andrew Kohut, president of the Gallup Organization, calls this a "new twist" on the foreign military threat once loomed as the major foreign policy issue, he notes, there has been a "momentous change" in attitudes toward the Soviet Union.

"The success of the Reagan administration in terms of disarmament and the new detente with the Russians has taken away one of the Republican chips in recent years." Kohut says. Opinions about foreign policy usually divided the Democrats, he adds, but they're not being divided this year, because "it's not a salient issue. Some 45 per cent of Americans today have a "positive attitude" toward the Soviet government, Kohut says. Eleven years ago only 1 i per cent did.

Attitude "If that opinion sticks and Americans continue to have a more favourable attitude, that will affect a whole range of issues defence spending, US troops in Europe, and so on."

While foreign policy may not be a central issue in the campaign, there is no doubt the Dukakis-Bentsen team will come under attack for its lack of diplomatic experience. Republican challenger George Bush is expected to continue highlighting his immense experience in foreign policy posts, including US ambassador to the United Nations and China and director of the Central Intelligence Agency. But political observers suggest that it will be the character, personality, and comportment of the two presidential contenders more than the specific issue of experience that will determine public judgment in this area. Harry Truman did not have foreign policy experience. Nor did Jimmy Carter. Ronald Reagan also lacked credentials and waged the 1980 campaign the image of a "trigger-happy cowboy. Experience in the final analysis will not be critical." says Everett C. Ladd, executive director of the Roper Centre for Public Opinion Research. "It will be the substance of what is conveyed, such as strength with respect to representing the country and a sense of self-assurance. Except in dramatic instances where the country is engaged in a war — as in Vietnam in 1972 foreign policy in presidential elections is more a matter of "national feelings," of how a candidate will manage the national interest and articulate that interest, says Dr Ladd. In 1984, he points out, Reagan was criticized on specific foreign policy failures, including Central America and Beirut, but he conveyed the image of a "strong articulator of the national position that transcended specific

Vuinerable Dukakis should not be too vulnerable on foreign policy, says Fred Greenstein, Princeton biographer of Dwight Eisenhower, because voters respond most to the question of war and peace and the governor's bland-ness does not come across as flaky. For all of George Bush's experience, he too carries liabilities, including his associa-tion with an often-marred Reagan foreign policy and his difficulty in shedding an image of 'wimpiness'. The Iran-Contra scandal above all is expected to emerge as a campaign issue, say Democratic and Republican analysts. 'Iran-Contra remains the pivotal event in the Reagan administration that will determine whether Bush gets elected, says Kohut. "People do want to forget Iran-Contra, but it undermined a fragile confidence in government and the administration Reagan has not recovered and Bush continues to deal with the legacy of Iran-Contra, Noriega, etc. It's all

Mixing show business and politics

IT appears that the sad & sorry experience of Amitabh Bachchan and Mithun in politics has not made their colleagues any wiser. Two stars who have been toying with the idea and hobnobbing with politicians are Raj Babbar and Shatrughan Sinha. They are on the verge of jumping into the "cesspool" as Bachchan once described it.

Two factors make their task doubly difficult. One is that they have chosen to join the opposition, which means flow-ing against the tide of the ruling party. Secondly they are both quite busy with several films on hand, which means that with one foot each in two boats, smooth sailing is out of ques-

Sinha has already started feeling the pinch of siding with the opposition, especially his support of the newly elected leader V.P. Singh. Sinha's art film Antarjati Yatra made by Bengali Gautam Ghose has become a clear victim of this. The film was completed, it was blocked by the Calcutta censor board on the flimsy pretext that it advocated "sati", when actually the film protests against such outdated practices women being sacrificed for the sake of men.

The delay by the censors meant that the film could not be entered for the Berlin lestival.

When the censor objections were brought to the notice of the press the film was quickly cleared. It was entered for the National Awards. But here again, politics came into play. Some jury members exerted their pressure and the top-most award went to the Assamese film Halodhia though it was much inferior to Antarjali, which was only given the best Bengali film award and little else. Sinha of course had not a ghost of a chance as best actor, though he had accepted the small film in that hope.

Game When the film was to be entered in leading world festivals, the all mighty N.F.D.C. stepped in to play its own game. Ironically the film has been fin-anced by the Corporation itself. Yet Sinha's presence in it was like a red rag to a bull. They entered it in a "certain section" of the Cannes festival. When the Tashkent fete authorities heard of the film they insisted on Antarjali being entered for competition. But the N.F.D.C offered stiff resistance and stuck to its first choice, the Kannada film Tabarane Kathe.

Fortunately Fortunately Tashkent remained firm and at the last moment Antarjali became a competing entry. And the result? It won the top most award of the Golden Semurg.

whereas Tabarane would not have had a chance. Due to the eleventh-hour hassels, neither. Ghose Gautam Shatrughan Sinha could attend the festival. Some petty official of N.F.D.C. received the award. In contrast, a third-rate film like Panchvati had seven delegates at the festival. Sinha's absence at Tashkent despite his express desire, to go has become quite a talking point in the film & political circles.

Sinha was quoted by the press as saying. "I wanted to go to Tashkent, as it would be a glorious moment of a life time. I was not informed of Antarjali's entry. I contacted N.F.D.C., and when I went to Delhi, I got in touch with the Festival directorate, but their response was cool. The managing director of N.F.D.C. assured me that she would do something. But for five crucial days they did not even bother to phone me. My request was kept pending till the festival was over." Gautam Ghose cannot enter the controversy because he has been financed by the N.F.D.C. and they can still block his film. For example, the Hindi version Makayatra is being held up for unspecified reasons. In his telegram to Sinha, however Ghose wrote: "Keep up the fight".

Sinha has boldly declared that he was deliberately hoveotted because of his boycotted because of his political views, and the N.F.D.C. did not want him to gain popularity in U.S.S.R. Otherwise, his visit could have been easily arranged along with the sixty Indian delegates, who attended the festival many of them without any connection with the films shown.

Sinha has a soft corner for V.P. Singh and does not hesitate to admire him. Moreover, Sinha has made full plans to enter politics from Bihar. This is his native province and lakhs of Biharis love him. When he tours the region, huge crowds follow him security has to be maintained Sinha wants to gain from this and establish a footbold. He plans initially to hold charity shows and collect funds for the flood-ravaged people. Then he will conduct a mass contact programme in which opposi-tion leaders may participate and speak. But Sinha knows all too well that the opposition parties also have many black sheep. Will he be able to keep them at bay, with his frank nature and blunt speech? Or will he make more enemies? In spite of all this, Shatru has not lost his sense of humour. He is constantly cracking jokes in very down-to-earth language. He says his name itself stands for "enemy", so he can't help fighting evil and nonsense. He told journalists that he wants to do public service as an enlightened artiste. He is not crazy about fighting elections or get-ting a chair. We teased him whether he aimed at becoming Chief Minister. He caught his own ears with arre nahin baba. But he added mischievously that the Bihar government starts doing some work only when he goes there.

Shatru is also very busy with his films. In case he is a flop in romantic hero, like Amitabh. He has already switched to character roles as in Khudgarz. He has taken on some 45 films and is refusing new offers every day. How will be find enough time for politics? Any one field is bound to suffer. This is not the case with Raj Babbar, who has fewer films on hand, due to his recent flops.

Claims

Babbar has been close to V.P. Singh right from the time the leader separated from the Congress party. He attends all of Singh's meetings and processions, and looks after him during his Bombay visits. He is a part of the Jan Morcha movement like producers Atmaram. Vijay Anand and some stars. It has been reported that Babbar even organised his own procession in Agra and tried to blow his own trumpet. These seem to indication of his foray into active politics, but when talking to the press, he claims like Sinha, to be interested in only the service aspect and not the struggle for chairs. Consequently he is lending his support to the "right leader."

Babbar also claims that he has signed 35 films of which 25 are being actively shot. Whatever the actual number. he is constantly accused of neglecting his film work whenever there is the call of politics. But he denies this vehemently. Moreover, he had to give up certain films due to his political affiliation, especially films made by government suppor-ters with public money, or those in which his co-stars were people like Amitabh or Rajesh Khanna, from the Congress I

A bigger danger faced by Babbar is that his films may be boycotted on T.V. One of his old starrers due for a Sunday telecast was pushed aside because he was the star. Producers could be deterred from signing him on. He may not get any work in T.V. films or serials and he could never attempt producing a serial, like Rajesh Khanna who did so with the poor stuff Aadka Sach, Aadha Jhooth. Even B.R. Chopra's marathon serial Mahabharat is said to be falling in the danger zone as Babbar plays an important part in it. With so many problems, why can't stars choose any one field ... either cinema or politics?

Kamal Haasan: one of the few brainy guys in a field of brainless award for the Hindi film Sasgar. Though he has had a lean trot in Hindi films, he is very likely to do a film for K.C. Bokadia. Kamal is one actor who never fights shy of the press and is ever cager to exchange ideas and views with members of the fourth estate.

"I was baptised into cinema at a very early age and did my first film Kalathur Kamama when I was barely five years old. I won the National Award for the best child actor for this film.

Later I did a number of good roles in films like Ananda Jothi," recollects Kamal. As often happens with child stars. film-makers dropped Kamal

Undeterred by this reverse and with some dance training, he soon set up shop as a dance assistant.

He caught the eye of one of the most gifted directors in Tamil cinema, K. Balachander, who groomed him and honed his talents. Balachander cast his protege in a number of films like Arangetram, Sollathan, Ninsikkiren, Apoorva Raganga! and Aval Oru Thodarkathai.

"One of my significant breaks came to me in Bharathi Rajaa's Pathinaru Vayadhinile in which I played the totally deglamorised role of a village idiot in love with the local beauty,"

Kamal later played a psychopath in Bharathi Raja's Sigappu Rojakkal — the runaway success of his film made him one of the safest bets at the box-office.

The party at the Sun-N-Sand hotel was a surprise to many guests and journalists, since there were also three other parties on the same night, which Mithun would have loved to attend!

Veteran eccentric Raj Kumar is actually quite a clever chap. Stories of his crazy antics are spread all over the place thereby ensuring that he is always in the news. Perhaps the antics are committed for that reason.At a recent birthday celebration of a director on the sets a kuife was needed to cut the cake, and R. More of the world's worst failures

forgotten by one actor

IN one of the great stage performances of our time Paul Greenwood breathed new life into a familiar old play by forgetting almost every line of his part at the Barbican Theatre, London, on July 24, 1984.

At the opening night of The Happiest Days of Your Life he single-handedly transformed an otherwise predictable show. The great actor strode confidently onto the stage and placed his golf bag on the table. It immediately slid off, signalling that we were in the presense of a master.

After saying a few lines correctly, perhaps to show what a dull evening it would be without his intervention, he began rummaging in his pock-ets so he could "take a note" as the script demanded.

It all began when his propelling pencil didn't have any lead and then his pen didn't have any ink and then he realised there was total silence on stage while he was supposed to be speaking. Now elegantly flustered, his face was suffused with the finest expressions of blankness ever seen on the London stage. He launched into a bravura selection of original lines that would have come as a great surprise to the playwright. In act two he varied his performance and began saying everybody else's lines, whereupon he turned to the audience and said: "I'm sorry, we'll have to stop because I'm talking nonsense up here. You see, there was no lead in my pencil." When a colleague adlibbed that "this has always been your problem" it brought the house down.

He started the contest "to fill a need." Most literary contests, he said, are inherently unfair, favouring as they do talent, sensibility and intelligence. "They are callously neglectful of the mediocre masses, those who might be authors if they had any craft, vision or message."
The contest was named after the 19th century British novelist. Edward Bulwer-Lytton, in whose work a glass of beer is always "a nectarian beverage" and a bedroom is "somnambular accommodation" and a man lighting his pipe is des-cribed as "applying the Promethean spark to his tube."

rejection slips JOHN CREASEY made an important contribution to world literature over a period of seven years. He showed early promise when his first thriller, The Men Who Died Laughing, came back from the publishers almost immediately. Three months later he completed a school novel, Our Glorious Term, and this proved even less popular. His third book, The Captain of the Fifth, was completely unacceptable, as were The Mysterious Mr Rocco, Mystery at Manby House, and The Flying Turks.

When Dazzle and the Red Bombers was returned the great man of letters was getting into his stride.

By 1925 he had received 743 rejection slips before getting his first book published and losing all interest for us. One possible reason for his achievement is that he once claimed to have written two of these books in a week and still spend half a day playing cricket.

The dud book fair

A RECORD number of visitors poured into the 1982 York Book Fair, probably because its central feature was the first Dud Books of All Times exhibition. Never before -had such a powerful collection of completely unsaleable volumes been gathered together under one roof.

The imposing entrance to the Assembly Rooms was specially decked out for the occasion with vivid wallpaper, fairy lights and a dayglo-pink signboard.

The most popular book on show was The List of Stop Cocks in the Liver Building, Liverpool 1912. This was closely followed by a signed copy of The Philosophy of Elbert Hubbard.

EEC urged to reconsider duty-free ceiling

RIYADH, Aug 24. (OPECNA): The European Economic Com-munity (EEC) has been urged to reconsider its proposed duty-free quota ceiling for 1989 for Saudi petrochemical exports to Western European countries.

Ibrahim Ibn Salamah, chief executive officer of the Saudi Arabian Basic Industries Corporation (SABIC), said that under the proposal, the king-dom's quota is less than half the 1987 figure.

Products

Under the generalised system of preferences (GSP) the EEC conducts an annual study of products experted to its member countries in a bid to limit competition and to set values and quantities which may be admitted duty-free.

However, Salamah said that the EEC had reduced year by year the amount of SABIC products qualifying for duty-free import, despite the fact that Europe was currently short of petrochemical supplies.

The corporation, which produces plastic resins, liquid petrochemicals and fertilisers, exports many products to European countries, but under the GSP system, only very small quantities are admitted duty-

Salamah said that world prices for most petrochemicals, plastic resins and fertilisers had doubled over the past year due to high demand, yet the EEC proposed to reduce by half the value of SABIC's duty-free products.

The corporation hoped that a forthcoming meeting of the EEC foreign ministers would reverse the quota proposal for next year in view of the Community's general economic relations with the Gulf Co-operation Council.

The blending plant of the refinery, which is a subsidiary of the Libyan National Oil Company, was turning out 28 kinds of lube oils with motor oil as the prime product, he said.

He disclosed that his company would soon introduce motor oil in cans on which warnings would be printed indicating that the content could be "environmen-tally unfriendly." He described this as part of a drive to reduce pollution.

His refinery was also producing asphalt at a rate of 100,000 tons a year to meet local demand which has jumped steeply over recent years due to increased road construction in Libva.

Reliance issue goes public

By M.C. Bose

INDIA'S Reliance Industries representatives, led by S. Natarajan, Secretary of Reliance Industries Limited, India's lar-gest convertible debenture issue, arrived in Kuwait yesterday to introduce the company's latest offer to public and existing shareholders.

The company's issue of Rs 5.160 million convertible deben-tures carrying 12.5 per cent interest opened on Aug 22 and closes on Aug 31. Nataraja i told the Arab Times Rs. 3000 m worth of preferential allotment is reserved for Reliance shareholders, including non-resident Indians.

Advantage Natarajan said that the issue is structured to yield the maximum benefit to the investor and the company. He said the compan decided on an investor-oriented structure for the issue of Reliance Petrochemicals Limited, because "it entails a distinct advantage over traditional financing with institutional borrowing,"

Natarajan said the petrochemicals project was the biggest so far in a string of related ventures successfully launched by Reliance. He said the project is expected to be completed in two years and envisaged production of 60,000 tonnes of the high density polyethylene (HDPE) 60,000 tonnes of monoethylene glycol (MEG) and 100,000 tonnes of polyvinyl chloride (PVC) per

The entitlement of shareholders is a minimum of five debentures for shareholding up to 50 shares. After that, one debenture will be allowed for every additional holding of 10 shares.

Shareholders can also apply for additional debentures at Rs 200 each. Natarajan said Rs 10 from that will be converted into one equity share on allotment. Rs 40 will be converted into equity shares after three to four years, and the rest would be converted in five to seven years.

Britain tries to promote trade ties with Iraq

LONDON, Aug 24, (KUNA): Britain's Trade and Industry Minister Tony Newton, will lead the British delegation to the annual Anglo-Iraq commission in Baghdad in November to promote British business there, it was confirmed today. British officials said the visit is part of renewed efforts to help UK companies benefit from trade opportunities arising from the Gulf War ceasefire. The trip coincides with the 25th annual least control from the least central The annual service least control. national fair in the Iraqi capital. The announcement came less than two weeks after the Department of Trade and Industry said that it was providing funds to firms wishing to exhibit at the Tehran International Trade Fair next month. Meanwhile, the officials recalled that Britain made credit lines available to Iraq throughout the eight years of the Gulf war, while Baghdad gave Britain "favoured nation" trading status. Forty live British firms will attend the Baghdad fair, nearly twice the number of last year. While in Iraq, the British delegation will discuss prospects for British firms to win large contracts, especially in the post-war reconstruction period. The talks will also cover the possibility of new guaranteed lines of British credit to Baghdad, the officials said. American oil prices drop

NEW YORK, Aug 24, (Reuter): US oil prices fell 21 cents a barrel yesterday due to signs of increased OPEC production, and industry analysts predicted that they could slide another 50 cents by the September 20 meeting of OPEC's price monitoring mittee. West Texas Intermediate crude oil for October delivery, the US benchmark grade, fell 21 cents to $15.71 a barrel in futures trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. North Sea Brent blend, the most commonly traded international crude oil, fell 10 cents to $15.10 a barrel for October delivery. "We are starting to see the effects of rising OPEC production on the market," said Michael Rothman, an oil industry analyst at Merrill Lynch capital markets. Oil prices fell in part because of a Renter report that Saudi Arabian oil output rose to an estimated 4.6 million barrels per day in the first three weeks of August. Saudi Arabia's official OPEC quota is 4.34 million barrels a day. Rothman said production by the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries is running at nearly 19.5 million barrels per day this month, up from a quota of 15.06 million barrels daily that excludes Iraq. Iraq, having unsuccessfully lobbied for a quota equal to Iran's, currently has no OPEC production quota and pumped an estimated 2.65 million barrels a day in July, according to a Reuter survey. Traders expect fran and fraq to increase output before the OPEC price committee meets, said Jim Steel, oil analyst at Refco Inc. The meeting, according to a Venezuelan oil official, has been tentatively set for Septemb Steel said crude oil prices could drop to $15.25 a barrel during World debt World banks eager

NEW YORK, Aug 24, (AP): Faced with a $1.2-trillion problem that has been worrying bankers increasingly since 1982, banks from Amsterdam to Tokyo have sharply cut back on new loans to Third World nations, and are seeking ways to limit or eliminate the debt they

After years of renegotiating repayment terms with the debtor nations, some of the banks are selling off their loans at reduced

Others are swapping them for investments in the debtor countries, writing off uncollectable credits or setting up multi-billion dollar reserves for possible losses on bad loans.

Many of the debtor nations stopped paying back the principal on the loans years ago. They include the three biggest debtors - Brazil, Mexico and Argentina, which together owe about $360 billion. Mexico ran out of money to pay its foreign creditors in August 1982, unleashing widespread worry about the ability of Third World countries to repay their loans, and now is repaying interest only. For about a year starting in February 1987, Brazil suspended even interest payments on its debts. Peru has paid practically nothing at all on its $14-billion debt since July 1985.

As a result, most commercial banks are reluctant to put to more money. Most debtor nations are not getting any new credits except to help them pay interest on what they already Butr the accumulating interest due on old loans keeps on swelling the total Third World debt. In the last year or so it has risen from about $1 trillion to more than $1.2 trillion, according to World Bank figures.

Creditor banks have adopted various strategies to face the crisis. Over the past few years, the debts of many borrowing countries have been renegotiated collectively by committees of all the creditor banks, working jointly to allow debtor nations more time to pay up.

> Many individual banks have also taken measures on their own. Some have simply written certain debts off as uncollectable and accepted a loss. Others have sold the delinquent debt - at a reduced price - to other creditors. A few have traded in some debts for an investment in a company in the debtor country - a transaction known as a debtfor-equity swap.

A market for trading Third World debt crisis are American. Japanese and British banks. But banks from the Netherlands, Switzerland, France, Italy, Sweden, Hong Kong and other nations are also significantly involved.

Here is how some of them are United States:

American banks are the biggest Third World creditors. According to a report issued by the US Federal Reserve last month, American commercial banks had $96 billion in loans outstanding to developing nations in Asia. Africa and Latin America.

US banks hold about a fifth of the total Mexican and Brazilian foreign debt of more than $100 billion each, one-sixth of Argentina's $55 billion external debt, and one-quarter of Venezuela's $34-billion debt load. Hundreds of or sold most or all of their Third World loans, so that nine big US commercial banks now account for about 84 billion of the $96 billion owed to US lenders.

American banks have written off

Citicorp of New York, the big-est American bank and the leading bank in the negotiations with Brazil, Mexico, Argentina and Peru, started a trend among these American big lenders in May last year when it set up a $3-billion reserve for possible losses against its $13-billion in Third World

Citicorp chairman John S. Reed said then that his bank remains committed to lending to such big debtos as Brazil and Argentina. But in fact, in the past year Citicorp has reduced its Third World loan exposure by about $2 billion.

In the first six months of 1988 the 13 biggest American banks overall have reduced their exposure by $1.7 billion, through writeoffs, sales and swaps.

China may fail to meet grain output targets who prefer to cultivate more

BEIJING, Aug 24. (UPI): China may fail to meet crucial grain output targets this year in the wake of severe drought, floods and typhoons battering the world's most populous nation. the China Daily newspaper acknowledged today.

Officials said on Tuesday more than 47 million acres (19 million ha) of farmland across 18 of China's 29 provinces have been damaged by the bad weather and there are indications Beijing may have to increase grain imports this year.

Any output declines are a sensitive issue in China because of memories of past shortages and famines in the nation of more than I billion people.

Production Conservative economic planners regard grain production as the cornerstone of Chinese agriculture and have voiced concern that this vital area has been neglected in the government's sweeping economic reforms. "It will be very difficult for

China to fulfil the grain production quota set by the state this year in view of the country's present agricultural situation, the paper quoted an official at the National Reserch Centre for Development of Science and Technology as saying.

The official indicated China's grain yield could be at least 750,000 tons short of the 410million-ton target for 1988 because of the string of natural disasters, including a monthlong killer heat wave, widespread flooding and several typhoons, that have swept China this year. Natural disasters were also blamed for China's failure to meet its 400-million-ton grain target in 1987.

But Western agriculture experts said the latest shortfall was expected and that it was unlikely to have any serious impact since grain output is regarded as sufficient to meet nearly all China's needs.

A Chinese official said summer grain output 'scarcely' equalled last year's harvest and was well below the 1988 quota despite a 1.58 million-acre (639,400-ha) increase in acreage.

"The country now has to depend on its autumn crops to reach its target," the official said. But this will not be easy, because many of China's agricultural provinces are hit by natural disasters and the area for the growing of autumn crops has been reduced.

Imports

Officials have hinted that the drought and floods may force Beijing to increase its grain imports this year. In the last year, China has nearly doubled its wheat imports from 7.3 million tons to a forecast of 13 million tons in the fiscal year ending June

While the weather has been a major factor in below-target grain harvests in the last two years, another reason for falling output is a lack of interest in growing grain among peasants.

lucrative cash crops. The economic benefits to farmers of producing grain were lower than those for producing other cash crops," the Chinese official said.

Increased This year, the amount of new land turned over to cash crops has increased by 1.8 million acres (730,000 ha), China Daily said. Prices of chemical fertilisers.

UK STOCKS WELL OFF LOWS ON WALL STREET RALLY LONDON, AUG 24, REUTER - U.K. EQUITY PRICES RALLIED FROM THEIR LOWS AFTER A SURPRISING EARLY RALLY ON WALL STREET, BUT VOLUME HERE REMAINED LOW. BY 1400 GMT A RELATIVELY MODEST 292 MLN OF LEADING SHARES HAD CHANGED HANDS, DEALERS SAID. AT 1430 GNT THE FTSE 100 WAS 2.1 POINTS HIGHER AT 1,820.0 AFTER TOUCHING A LOW OF 1,810.9 AT 0912 GMT. DEALERS SAID THE RISE FROM LOWS WAS HELPED PARTLY BY RELIEF THAT THE BANK OF ENGLAND DID NOT SIGNAL ANOTHER RISE IN BASE RATES BECAUSE OF A FURTHER SLIDE IN STERLING. THERE WERE NO OUTSTANDING FEATURES TODAY AND OVER 30 PCT OF

THE TOP 100 SHARES WERE UNCHANGED FROM LAST NIGHT'S CLOSE. TRADERS WERE BRACING THEMSELVES FOR TOMORROW'S KEY U.K. JULY BALANCE OF PAYMENTS DATA WHICH COULD SET THE SCENE FOR THE NEAR TERM TREND OF INTEREST RATES AND THE LONDON MARKETS.

RECENT INDICATIONS THAT DOMESTIC CONSUMER DEMAND IS ACCELERATING IS CAUSING FEARS THAT DEMAND FOR OVERSEAS GOODS WILL SEE THE MERCHANDISE TRADE DEFICIT FOR JULY EXCEED THE CURRENT 1.5 BILLION STG MEDIAN FORECAST. AVERAGE FORECASTS FOR THE MORE CLOSELY WATCHED CURRENT ACCOUNT SHORTFALL STAND AT 950 MLN STG COMPARED WITH JUST OVER ONE BILLION IN THE PREVIOUS MONTH, BUT TRADERS SAID A FIGURE OF OVER A BILLION WOULD COME AS NO SURPRISE.

London Gold

LONDON, AUG 24, REUTER - GOLD BULLION CLOSED AT ITS HIGHEST EVEL SINCE THE BEGINNING OF AUGUST, PULLED UP BY A SURGE IN OTHER PRECIOUS METALS, ESPECIALLY PLATINUM, DEALERS SAID.

THE PLATINUM PRICE SURGE AGAIN WAS LED BY NEW YORK FUTURES. GOLD CLOSED AT 434.20/434.70 DLRS PER CUNCE, UP 2.20 DLRS FROM YESTERDAY'S LONDON CLOSE, BUT LEFT BEHIND BY THE STRONG PERFORMANCES OF PLATINUM AND SILVER, WHICH WERE UP 10 DLRS AND SEVEN CENTS PER OUNCE RESPECTIVELY FROM YESTERDAY'S LEVELS. "ONE HAS GOT TO SAY THAT ON THESE COUPLE OF SPELLS OF BUYING OF PLATINUM, GOLD LOOKS A BIT DISAPPOINTING," SAID ONE LONDON

London Money Market

LONDON, AUG 24, REUTER - HONEY MARKET INTEREST RATES
REMAINED 1/8 POINT FIRMER IN LATE TRADING, WITH THE BENCHMARK THREE MONTH INTERBANK RATE CLEARLY DISCOUNTING A FURTHER HALF POINT RISE IN U.K. BASE RATES TO 11-1/2 PCT.

THREE MONTHS STOOD AT 11-3/4 5/8 PCT AFTER A HECTIC DAY. ONE TRADER SAID, "THE LEVEL OF ACTUAL BUSINESS HAS NOT BEEN GREAT BUT THERE'S BEEN A LOT OF NOISE."

THIS HORNING, TRADERS HAD SAID THERE WAS AN EVEN CHANCE THE BANK OF ENGLAND WOULD SIGNAL HIGHER RATES TODAY, BUT IN THE EVENT, THE BANK TOOK NO ACTION IN THE MARKET. THIS INDICATED TO SOME ITS WISH TO MAINTAIN RATES AT PRESENT LEVELS.

Wall Street Market Report

New York, Aug 24, Reuter — Wall Street stocks held most of their early gains with Blue Chips down slightly from their highest levels. Traders said a technical rally had gone as tar as support would take it and some light profit-taking emerged as buying faded. The Dow was up 16 at 2007 after touching 2008. Taders tended to regard the gain as primarily a technical rally in an oversold market. Gaining issues held a two-to-one lead

Tin shines once more in world commodity markets

KUALA LUMPUR, Aug 24, (Reuter): Tin is at last shrugging off the effects of a crash nearly three years ago to shine once more in commodity markets. buoyed by strict supply quotas and renewed world demand.

"There is a growing realisation that there is a deficit of new tin and the supply overhang is being depleted," Kam Cheng Eng, secretary of the states of Malaya Chamber of Mines, said today.

Prices have risen in recent weeks and could breach 20 ringgit ($7.7) a kg level by October. up to six months ahead of earlier forecasts, traders and producers The Kuala Lumpur tin market closed higher for the seventh straight session today at 19.66 ringgit ($7.40) a kg, the highest in 30 months. "But it is nothing spectacular.,

Prices are just returning to normal. The deficit in new supply will raise prices high enough for high-cost marginal producers to return," Kam said of the latest

Crash

Traders said tin was unlikely though, to fetch the more than 29 ringgit ($10.90) a kg seen before the crash in October 1985 when the International Tin Council ran out of money to support prices.

Banks and creditors, mostly in Europe, were owed an estimated $1.44 billion because of losses made as tin prices halved when the council was no longer able to buy the metal at artificially high prices. The latest increase was largely due to a supply control scheme launched last year by the Association of Tin Producing Countries (ATPC), traders said.

ATPC members — Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand, Australia, Nigeria, Zaire and Bolivia produce most of the world's tin and have agreed to limit exports in a bid to support prices.

Association executive secretary Redzwan Sumun suid in an interview that world tin stocks, once around 80,000 tonnes, had now failen to about 45,000 tonnes.

Traders and the ATPC said it might take another two weeks to wipe out 25,000 tonnes of remaining excess stocks.

Redzwan said the recent recovery was also due to higher demand for the metal by canners in the West and Europe who are slowly switching back to tin because of higher aluminium prices.

Better tin-plating technology. an improved steel industry and a pick-up in the electronics indusiry - which uses tin for soldering have also helped the metal regain its shine.

HOUSTON, Texas, Aug 24, (AP): The University of Houston and Du Pont Co. on Tuesday signed what officials said was the first agreement for a company to license and commercialise superconducting products and processes based on discoveries of school researcher Paul Chu. The university receives an initial payment of $1.5 million under the agreement. In addition, Du Pont will pay the school $1.5 million upon issuance to the university of a US patent covering the superconducting material developed by Chu, considered a world leader in the field, and another $1.5 million two years after that patent is issued.

He did not rule out an extraordinary meeting if there were justifications for it, but he stressed that there were no intentions for that right now.

On the evolution of oil prices between now and the next OPEC conference, he said these depended on the fundamentals of the oil market — supply and demand, and stock and psychology. He said oversupply of crude oil would normally weaken prices.

On market psychology, he said the Gulf ceasefire and the settlement of production ceilings would boost solidarity and unity among member countries.

The deficit was down from an imbalance of $35.2 billion in the first three months of the year. Both quarters represented improvements from a record deficit of 41.2 billion in the fourth quarter of last year.

The 14.9 per cent narrowing in the deficit represented its biggest decline since the fourth quarter of 1982, when the imbalance fell by 18.9 per cent.

Corn sales climbed 27 per cent. with much of the gain attributed to increased sales to the Soviet Union and Mexico. Wheat sales were up 10 per cent due to an increase in sales to China, while meat and poultry shipments rose 28 per cent, largely due to an increase in sales to Japan.

But Britain's big four have substantially increased their reserves to meet possible losses on Third World debt in 1987.

Midland Bank announced in July that it had set up a new division to combine its commercial and investment banking in the Third World and demonstrate "a greater commitment to debt-equity swamps." The division will manage foans totalling about $7 billion, most of them in Latin America but some in

Swiss banks say they have been conservative in their lending

Even so, according to the most recent statistics available from the Swiss National Bank, outstanding credits by Swiss commercial banks to Thrid World borrowers were $20 billion at the end of 1986. This was down $1.5 billion from the end of 1985.

Switzerland's major commercial banks have substantially reduced their exposure to the most indebted nations. For example, one of the big three, Swiss Bank Corp., has reduced its exposure to the 15 most indebted nations in the past six years from 5.1 billion Swiss francs ($3.2 billion) to 2.8 billion Swiss francs ($1.8 billion).

Hans Viool, a spokesman for Amro Bank, the Netherlands' third-largest commercial bank, said "we're not considering any special measures because contrary to some American banks. we have no problems with Third World debts." He noted that the few Dutch banks involved in loans to Third World governments "have always kept large reserves to meet any emergencies, so that there would be no chance of solvency problems in case of trouble." Italy:

Developing countries, mostly in Latin America, owe banks in Italy between $5 and $6 billion, according to estimates by the Italian Banking Institute and the Bank of Italy.

The Italian treasury ministry is currently preparing legislation that will give banks fiscal benefits if they raise their provisions for bad loans, a technique widely used last year by British and US banks.

'The present regulation does not take into account the particularly risky nature" of operations to finance businesses and institutions in foreign countries with economic difficulties, Treasury Minister Giuliano Amato said in a report last month.

ONCE upon a time there lived in Ireland an Irishman called Mister Clancy. He lived in a wee hut beside a Brown Bog and, so that he should not be lonely, he had a Little Green Horse.

One morning Mister Clancy was awakened early by the sun.

Begorra and likewise begorra," said Mister Clancy, sitting up under his patchwork counterpane, "tisa bright, shiny day and it's myself that will get up and make myself a cupful of tea."

"Mister Clancy, my dear Master," said the Little Green Horse, who had awakened too, "can I have a basin of meal and water and, my dear Master, it is my birthday today and you'veforgotten." And the Little Green Horse's eyes filled with tears.

Me Little Green Horse, me faithful friend," sobbed Mister Clancy, "how could I forget your birthday! But do not fret, 'tis myself has a silver penny in me breeches pocket and when you've had your meal and water and myself a teacup of tea, 'tis to the Village we'll go to buy you the big, fine

So Mister Clancy made himself a cup of tea and mixed a bowl of meal and water for the Little Green Horse.

"Mister Clancy, my dear Master," he said, "I know what I want for a birthday present."

"What is it, me wee beast?" asked Mister Clancy.

" Tis four new shoes for my for feet," said the Little Green Horse. " Tis two pairs of new shoes you shall have for your birthday," said Mister Clancy. So the Little Green Horse finished his meal and water and Mister Clancy washed his teacup.

the hut door behind them and away they went. "Oh, Mister Clancy, my dear Master," said the Little Green Horse, as he trotted along beside Mister Clancy, "what a lovely bir-thday I'm having."

Then Mister Clancy locked

Presently they came to a small hut beside the Bogside. Crouching in the doorway was an old woman. Big tears were rolling down her wrinkled

"Bedad, and what have we here?" cried Mister Clancy. "Tis the Witch of the Bogside, crying her eyes out his sunshiny morning. What ails you, Old Mother?"

The Witch sobbed again. Then she rose to her feet and, lifting her ragged skirt, showed two bare feet. "Begorra and likewise begorra," said Mister Clancy, "tis ten fine toes you've got." The Witch cried harder than ever.

"Last night as the moon was rising," sobbed the Witch, "I lost my shoes in the Bog. 'Tis my ten toes that be killing me. They be that cold."

The Little Green Horse's eyes filled with tears.

"Oh, Mister Clancy," he cried, "lift this poor Witch onto my back. We will take her into the Village and buy her some shoes.

Mister Clancy took the silver penny out of his pocket and looked at it. "Begorra," he said, "it's a deal of money. There ought to be enough to buy this poor Witch shoes."

"She'll only want one pair, not the two pairs I need," said the Little Green Horse.

"Right! Up you go!" cried Mister Clancy lifting the Witch onto the Little Green Horse's back.

On went Mister Clancy and the Little Green Horse trotting round the Bog. Suddenly the Little Green Horse stopped.

Begorra and likewise begorra," exclaimed Mister Clancy, "what do my startled eyes see. A large Black Rabbit with three black shoes and one bare foot, sitting at the mouth of his burrow crying his eyes

The rabbit sniffed. "I've lost one shoe," he said. "I had four black shoes and now I've only three and one bare foot." "What's your name, me poor beast?" asked Mister Clancy. "It's Rabbie the Robber," snapped the Witch.

"ROBBER?" cried Mister Clancy. "This won't do, my fine animal." "My Father and Mother were called Mister and

Robber. Missus squeaked the Black Rabbit, "so I'm called Robber, "Begorra and likewise

begorra," cried Mister Clancy, "did your parents rob, me poor beast? "Best lettuce thieves

hereabouts, bar none,' snapped the Witch. "I never steal," whined

Rabbie the Robber, "I live on dandelion leaves. Never would I steal a leaf of lettuce. But how can I go out to nibble dandelions with one foot bare?"

Mister Clancy took out his silver penny and looked at it.

"Tis a deal of money."

he sighed.
"Will it buy two pairs of shoes for me, a pair for the Witch and a pair for Rabbie the Robber?" asked the Little Green Horse.

Me faithful, wee beast," said Mister Clancy. "'tis only one shoe Rabbie the Robber needs.' "No shoemaker'll sell you one shoe," snapped the Witch. "You'll have to buy a pair."

"Well, it's to the Village we'll take Rabbie the Robber," said Mister Clancy kindly. "Up he goes beside the Witch."

"He's not coming near me," cried the Witch.

"Begorra and likewise begorra," cried Mister Clancy, "there's no pleasing everybody."

The little Green Horse licked Mister Clancy's neck with his faithful ton-

"Put Rabbie into your pocket, Mister Clancy, my dear Master," he said. So Mister Clancy stuffed Rabbie's hind legs into his pocket and tucked his head under his arm and off they set round the Bog to the Village.

Why we see the shapes and colours of objects We see by means of the eyes. The eye is a very delicate and complex organ and works more or less like a camera. Light enters the eye through a hole, the pupil; passes through a lens, the crystalline lens; is projected on to a layer of special tissue, the retina, situated on the opposite wall of the eyeball. The retina functions like a photographic film and is modified by light; it is a very thin layer of nerve cells, called cones and rods, which identify the colour or black and white images. When light strikes the cones and rods the eye transmits to the optic nerve a detailed message of what it sees. The message reaches the brain, which at once gives the necessary instructions. The eye turns the images upside down in the same way as happens in a camera, and the brain reverses them once again so that we see them exactly as they are.

The special shape of the eye and the number of rods in the retina enable us to see the images of the external world in the usual way, but if the number of rods or the curvature of the retina Ouite different from were different, we would see things differently, as is indeed the case with some mammals. For example we know that the cow sees objects much larger than we see them and some members of the cat family are able to see in the dark because of the different shape of their eyes.

Why some people need spectacles glass lenses, the crystalline lens of the eye has the ability to alter its curvture. In fact it is provided with muscles which make it more spherical when it is looking at near objects and flatter when it has to look at distant objects. It may happen with the passage of time or through some Myopia is when the distance between the lens and the retina is too great and the eye can see near objects well but not distant ones. The reverse to this is hyperopia when the distance between

Qualifier upsets Savchenko

MAHWAH, N.J., Aug 24, (Reuter): Julie Halard of France, a 17-year-old qualifier, made the most of her chance by ousting seventh seed Larisa Savchenko of the Soviet Union in the first round of the Mahwah Classic tennis tournament yesterday.

Halard, one of three French players to advance, surprised Savchenko, ranked 17th in the orld, 7-6 (7-4) 6-2.

Tournament favourite Steffi Graf of West Germany had her second-round match suspended in the second game by rain.

Graf, aiming to complete a Grand Slam sweep by winning the upcoming US Open, was broken in the first game by 16-year-old Arantxa Sanchez of Spain on four unforced errors.

But the world's number one player earned a double break point at 15-40 in the second game when the match was stopped by a steady rainfall.

Savchenko gave a half-hearted effort in the second set against Halard and won only two points on her last three service games. She double faulted three successive times in the sixth game.

"I think that she was tanking the match in the second set, said Halard, who is ranked 53rd. "All she seemed to do was make mis-

Joining Halard into the second round were her compatriots Isabelle Demongeot and Nathalie Tauziat. Both players advanced after losing the opening set.

Demongeot eliminated Judith Wiesner of Austria 4-6 6-4 6-1, while Tauziat beat Etsuko Inoue of Japan 4-6 6-0 6-2. Opening

"I was upset with myself after I was only one point away from a 4-1 lead in the opening set" said Demongeot. "I was able to attack the ball early in those final two sets and got to the net quickly.

Veteran Dianne Balestrat, 32, also came from behind to edge 18-year-old Nicole Provis in an all-Australian match, 2-66-47-5. "It was very close and tough," said Balestrat, twice a semifinalist at the French Open. "She did show me a lot of fighting spirit.

Italy thrash Spain 10-0

FLORENCE. Italy, Aug 24, (AP): Gianguido Poma hit a three-run homer to highlight a seven-run outburst in the second inning as Italy crushed Spain 10-0 yesterday in the opening game of the World Baseball Championships.

Italy tagged Spain's starting pitcher Manuel Jemenez for seven runs on six hits and five walks in just 1 1-3 innings.

The game was called in the bottom of the seventh inning when Guglielmo Trinci rapped a two-run double that put Italy ahead 10-0. Under international rules, the contest is cut short if a team leads by 10 runs or more in the seventh inning and beyond.

Italy's starting pitcher, Paulo Ceccaroli, got the victory. He allowed just four hits in six innings, while walking one and striking out eight.

Longo wins women's pursuit cycling title

GHENT, Belgium, Aug 24, (AP): France's Jeannie Longo came for behind to edge Barbara Ganz by the smallest of margins to win the pursuit title at the World Track Cycling Championships yesterday. The outcome was long in doubt. Organisers first announced Ganz as the winner.

But after checking the times again, they said Longo finished in 3:47,848 compared to Ganz's

"I knew the timing gunshot at the end was for me when I crossed the line," said Longo. US rider Melinda Mayfield Gartin upset Tea Vikstedt Nymann of Finland also in a come-from-behind effort to claim the bronze medal.

In the final, Longo trailed until the last lan. She was behind by 0.57 seconds with one kilometre to go in the three-kilometre race but always remained within striking distance.

"I led for so long and I had to say to myself: you're not going to let this one slip away," she said. Longo, who goes to the Seo! Olympic Games to compete in the road race, said training for such long-distance races had cost her. "Too much road made me vulnerable on the track," she Longo had already won the world title in 1986, but was beaten by US pursuit specialist Rebecca Twigg, who was not in Ghent to defend her title. Longo was second to Twigg three times over the last four years.

Ganz had been unable to split the two atop the standings and her best showing was a bronze in 1986, when Longo won.

Sprint

In earlier races, defending champion Nabuyuki Tawara of Japan and Monday's world Keirin champion Claudio Golinelli of Italy reached the semifinals of the professional sprint.

Tawara was joined by compatriot Hirofumi Iryo but a third Japanese, Eiichi Sakamoto lost to strong Australian Stephen Pate. All semifinalists beat their opponents in two straight legs.

In the professional pursuit event, Britain's Tony Doyle set a best time of 5:49.33 minutes in the five-kilometre race to reach the semifinals.

But within one second were his two closest challengers: Pole Lech Piasecki and Denmark's Jesper Worre. Daniel Wyder of Switzerland took the fourth slot in today's event.

NEW YORK, Aug 24, (Reuter): Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson suffered a hairline fracture of his right wrist in a street brawl with ex-contender Mitch Green early yesterday morning putting his upcoming defence against Briton Frank Bruno in jeopardy. A sombre Tyson, wearing a heavy cast up to his forearm, told a hastily arranged news con-ference that he was attacked by Green outside Dapper Dan's allnight clothing store in Harlem. "He came at me ranting and raving about (promoter) Don King owing him money. He grab-bed me and I just defended myself," Tyson said. Earlier, police said they had received a complaint from Green, who said Tyson had "popped" him on the nose. Green received five stitches in the nose at a nearby hospital.

Tyson's manager, Bill Cayton. said the injury would not neces-sarily force the cancellation of the champion's scheduled October 8 title defence against Briton Frank Bruno in London's Wembley stadium.

"If the healing is complete it will be just enough time to train for the fight. We still plan to go to London on the 18th of September," Cayton said.

Tyson said he was shopping in the store at 4:30 am with some of his friends when Green approached him complaining about Don King. Police earlier described Dapper Dan's as an after-hours club. Two of Tyson's friends appeared at the press conference to back up the champion's story.

Tom Smalls, one of Tyson's friends, said that when Tyson left the store Green followed him and didn't allow him to enter his car. Smalls said that at one point the champion's hand was caught in the car door. He was unsure if the injury happened then or when Tyson hit Green.

"I had no choice but to defend myself," said Tyson. "I was frightened. I haven't had a street fight in seven years."

Professional basketball star Walter Berry, who was also with Tyson, said Green, "looked out

Cayton, who recently settled a dispute over his managerial contract with Tyson, emerged from a closed-door meeting with the boxer following the press conference and played down the severity of the injury. "It was only a very fine hairline fracture," said Cayton, who said Tyson's regular doctor, David Chin, had examined him. "If it wasn't Mike Tyson the doctor would not have put his hand in a cast. We'll take it off in three weeks and if he's completely healed we will start training for Bruno. Headded: "I'm very optimistic the fight will take place as scheduled."

By Gail Seery

A BRAND new, 340bhp engine, imported specially from the UK is the centrepoint of Eid Falah's bid to win this year's Marlboro Desert Challenge, which kicks off with the Bahrain BP2000 Jeep rally on September 8 and 9.

Eid Falah feels that if all goes well he has a good chance of winning one of the initial rounds, preferably Bahrain, and therefore of qualifying for the final in Dubai in December.

"I have driven in Bahrain before, so I am familiar with some of the stages. I'm sure I can get a better result than last year." In this sport, where the difference between first and second place can often be measured in terms of cash investment, sponsorship counts. Eid Falah is very lucky to be the only Kuwaiti driver with full sponsorship in terms of car, equipment and support. No matter how good a driver is, he cannot win a rally without the aid of not only his codriver, but also his service crew. in this sport, as in all motorsport, teamwork is vital. Falah drives an Al Zayani prepared and supported Range Rover — the first locally prepared vehicle of its calibre to compete in Kuwait. Although the Al Zayani company is relatively new to rally sponsorship it has entered wholeheartedly into the sport, progressively strengthening and improving their vehicle.

Overali Falah took the first win of his career in the Zayani Range Rover in the last local raily. Prior to that his best result was a second in round 2 of the 1987 championship, and second in the Kuwait round of last year's Marlboro Desert Challenge, where he pegged Ahmed Al Hilal's lead back to 14 seconds. He had gone to Bahrain in second place overall, and felt that a win in the Challenge was not impossible. However suspension problems pushed him back to fourth, and he failed to finish in the final round which was held in Jordan, dropping out when fir-mly in the lead. Even so, he took fourth place overall in the challenge, a commendable showing for this comparatively inexperienced driver.

. Falah is very enthusiastic about his new car. "It's very special, and has everything prepared especially for racing, from the engine to the gearbox and the shock absorbers. Zayani also gives me a practice car for Bahrsin, which will make my practising much more effective. Everything is fantastic with the car. If I have no problems I will

Falah's navigator, Sadeq Ashkanani, a former Kuwait National co-driver Champion, who has navigated for Tarey Al Wazzan, Ahmed Al Zafiri, and Mohammed Bin Sulavem leaves for Bahrain at the beginning of the month to make initial reparations, and Falah will follow him shortly afterwards. It is clear that Falah builds most of his confidence on his Range Rover. "Zayani have done their best in a very short

They have developed an excellent knowledge of the sport, and my car is likely to be the most powerful in the rally, and the people working on the car will be the same specialists who built it." Forced A note of caution creeps into Falah's talk; he recalls how Mohammed Bin Sulayem was forced out of the Morocco rally with a hole in his brand new engine, despite having appeared to be a firm winner only a few hours before. "If the co-driver is good, and there are no problems with the car, then the Zayani team can certainly bring a good result." Tareq Al Wazzan, Ahmed and Ghazi Al Zafiri and Mubarak Al Omair are also expected to contest the Bahrain 4x4 rally.

LONDON, Aug 24, (Reuter): England Test bowlers Neil Foster and Derek Pringle helped Essex in their late title thrust as they hustled second-placed Worcestershire to a 77-run defeat in the English County Championship yesterday.

Worcestershire found a 295 target beyond them on an unreliable pitch that was fully exploited by Foster and Pringle, who both put in morale-boosting bowling figures ahead of England's Test against Sri Lanka tomorrow.

Foster finished with two wickets in three balls and took four for 61 in a match haul of 10 for 128. Pringle had three for 74 as Worcestershire were bowled out for 217. England recruit Phil Newport offered the only touch of defiance with 34.

Madugalle: Sri Lanka captain

Although regarded as minnows in top-class international cricket, they have some reason for optimism when they face England in the sole Test of their short tour.

Five of their batsmen have made centuries in their seven drawn matches against county sides during the current tour and captain Ranjan Madugalle showed his class with 97 against Hampshire.

Their one previous Test in this country, four years ago and also at Lord's, should also give them encouragement. Then they were sent in to bat and proceeded to grind the England attack into the ground as they compiled a first innings 491 for seven before declaring.

Falling

After dismissing England for 370, Sri Lanka then made 294 for seven in their second innings, their then captain Duleep Mendis failing by only six runs to complete his second century of the drawn match.

On that occasion, England had just been handed a 5-0 drubbing by West Indies in the earlier part of the summer. This time, they enter the match against Sri Lanka with a marginally better bed to the Caribbean machine only 4-0.

Such is the despair of the English selectors they have made six changes in the line-up to face Sri Lanka, bringing to 3! the number of players they have chosen

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Aug 24, (Reuter): Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), said today he would not after all seek a special invitation for British athlete Sebastian Coe to compete in Seoul. Samaranch told Reuters that
